This is what the author had to say about it: “Half-Life of a Secret is a deeply researched memoir that traces my journey to reckon with the toxic legacies of secrecy—political, environmental, personal, and international—arising from my grandfather’s work building nuclear weapons in Oak Ridge, Tennessee. It weaves the personal and the political, the researched and the lyric, to ask questions about land, mental illness, guilt, complicity, responsibility, and love. “

Copies of the book will be on sale at these events. Alternatively, the book can be ordered from most independent, national, and online book sellers including Amazon and Barnes and Noble.

Signed copies of the book can be ordered through Moon Books in Minneapolis, MN
